SENATOR OJODU CHARGES NIGERIAN YOUTHS TO TAKE OVER POWER AND TRANSFORM NIGERIA

...As UNIOSUN College of Humanities and Culture holds Annual College Lecture

One of the foremost Nigerian Journalists, former Senator from the Ekiti Central Constituency and current Senior Special Adviser to the President of the Federal Republic of Nigeria on Political Affairs, Senator Babafemi Ojodu, on Tuesday, 5th July, 2022 charged Nigerian youths to take over leadership roles and transform the country. Senator Ojodu made this statement while delivering a lecture titled "The Nigerian Youths in the Emerging Democratic Order" at the 2022 annual lecture of the University's College of Humanities and Culture, Ikire campus.

According to the Guest Lecturer, for youths to take over power and play sterling roles in the politics of the nation, it is imperative for them to understand the dynamics of our society. He noted that a better picture for Nigeria was the underlying motive of the paper, which he claimed could only be achieved through the inclusion of youths in critical positions in Government.

Senator Ojodu theorized the concept of "a subtle and larger takeover strategy", where the younger generation gradually unseat the status quo in a takeover that has got to be subtle and gradual. He traced the emergence of godfatherism to Nigeria's First Republic, a major syndrome that characterised the three major political parties: Ahmadu Bello's Northern People's Congress, Herbert Macaulay and Nnamdi Azikiwe's National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons and Chief Obafemi Awolowo's Action Group.

While speaking about political apathy among youths, Senator Ojodu counseled the youths to organize themselves in large numbers and join major political parties at the early stage so as to acquire the needed political experience before running for major political offices. Having registered as members of political parties, he advised the youths further to overwhelm the older generation with contemporary ideas of governance and expose them to modern ways of doing things.

In his earlier remarks, the Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, ably represented by the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic, Research, Innovations and Partnerships), Professor Anthony Kola-Olusanya, welcomed the Guest Lecturer and all guests to the University and the College. He then proceeded to intimate the gathering with some historical details about the University and the Ikire Campus. He specially commended Senator Babafemi Ojodu for honouring the University's invitation in spite of his other numerous engagements.

The Provost of the College, Professor Temitope Balogun, and the Dean, Professor Rotimi Fasan, jointly presented a Distinguished Guest Lecturer Award to Senator Babafemi Ojodu for the thought-provoking lecture, while other awards were presented by the Vice-Chancellor to past and current Provosts and Deans of the College.

UNIOSUN PRO-CHANCELLOR LAYS FOUNDATION STONE OF PETER ISHOLA OFFICE COMPLEX

The Pro-Chancellor and Chairman of Council of Osun State University, Mallam Yusuf Olaolu Ali, SAN, on Thursday, 28th July, 2022, turned the first sod of the Peter Ishola Office Complex, at the institution's College of Humanities and Culture, Ikire.

The office complex, which was donated by a United States based philanthropist and entrepreneur, Mr. Peter Ishola, would consist of ten units of professorial suites, which would be in accordance with the National Universities Commission's guidelines for programmes accreditation.

Addressing the stakeholders at the foundation laying, the Pro-

Chancellor tasked stakeholders and well-meaning individuals in the society to contribute their quota to the development of the community.

The legal luminary maintained that the development of veritable institutions like the University is a joint task, which privileged individuals in the society can tap into, to fast-track the progress of the ivory towers.

"Universities across the world cannot solely provide the facilities they need for rapid growth and development. They need the support of all stakeholders including the staff, students, alumni, well-meaning individuals and philanthropists, as well as governments and non-governmental organisations.” “One can have all the money in this world and not decide to give a kobo out, but if you decide to give out of the little you have, then you are worthy of note in the society.”

“I commend Mr. Peter Ishola for agreeing to give back to his fatherland. We had issues with getting befitting suite for our Professors before now but with this, we are confident of having the needed offices required for accreditation by the National Universities Commission, NUC,” the Pro-Chancellor stated.

In his remarks, the Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, lauded the donor for extending his hands of philanthropy to the University, stating that the project is expected to be commissioned in five months.

Professor Adebooye also commended the facilitator of the project, Professor Muibi Opeloye, for the initiative and sought the support of other stakeholders in the College towards the successful completion of the facility in record time.

The Akire of Ikire, Oba Olatunde Falabi Lambeloye III, appreciated the efforts of the Governing Council and Management of Osun State University, for keeping faith with the University's mandate of delivering qualitative education to students.

Oba Falabi also acknowledged the donor, while pledging the readiness of the leadership of the community to synergise and influence stakeholders and well-meaning sons and daughters of Ikire, all in a bid to birth ideas that would benefit the University positively.

Responding, the donor and CEO, Pena Healthcare System, Houston Texas USA, Mr. Peter Ishola expressed gratitude to God and the leadership of UNIOSUN for allowing such initiatives to thrive.

Assuring that the project would be completed in record time, Mr. Ishola noted that giving is his own way of achieving his age-long personal goal of ensuring that the upcoming generation has the much-needed access to improved aids for their individual and societal development.

VC REASSURES CENTRE FOR ATMOSPHERIC RESEARCH OF UNIVERSITY'S COMMITMENT TO PARTNERSHIP ON SPACE AND ATMOSPHERIC RESEARCH

The Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, has reassured delegates from the Centre for Atmospheric Research (CAR) of the Osun State University's commitment to build on the partnership between the two institutions by renewing the existing Memorandum of Understanding.

The Vice-Chancellor, who was represented by the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (ARIP), Professor Anthony Kola-Olusanya, gave this reassurance while addressing delegates from the Centre, who paid a courtesy call to the University on Thursday, 14th July, 2022. The delegation was received and entertained at the University's Multipurpose Hall in Osogbo. The Vice-Chancellor assured the delegation that data from the

and the government of the state. He noted that UNIOSUN and CAR had been in partnership for some years, and that the University had become part and parcel of the Centre.

In his reaction to the Vice-Chancellor's remarks, the leader of the delegation and Pioneer Director of the Centre, Professor Babatunde Rabi, thanked the Vice-Chancellor and Management for the warm reception and the spate of progress being made by the University. He thereafter provided some information about the Centre as a parastatal under the Federal Ministry of Science and Technology, and an activity Centre of the National Space Research and Development Agency (NASRDA), committed to research and capacity building in the atmospheric and related sciences.

The team leader and CAR Director had earlier disclosed that the Centre was planning to hold a 5-day workshop between Monday, 29th August, and Friday, 2nd September, 2022, at the University's main campus in Osogbo, and expressed the optimism of maximum support from the University to make the workshop an excellent one.

UNIOSUN INDIGENT STUDENTS RECEIVE TUITION SUPPORT FROM NGO

Two indigent students of Osun State University, on Tuesday, 19th July, 2022 became beneficiaries of tuition support from The Great People Foundation to enable them sit for the upcoming examinations.

Mojoro Faith, a 300 level student of the Department of Food Science and Technology, and Nureni Habeeb, a final year student of the Department of Political Science and International Relations were awarded scholarships of a hundred thousand naira each (N100,000) by the foundation.

Speaking at the office of the Vice-Chancellor where delegates from the foundation were received, the Founder and President of the NGO and an alumnus of the University, Mr. Joshua Aluko, said that the mission of the foundation is to put an end to the epidemic of "dropout" among undergraduates in higher institutions. According to him, the foundation "not only fast tracks the process of self-actualization among youths, but also builds the spirit of selflessness in them."

He further revealed that the foundation had granted financial assistance to 1,232 students in various tertiary institutions around the country since its inception in 2015, and intended to support 500 more students before the end of the year. To back up his claim that the foundation was granting employment to some of the graduates from the University, he offered Nureni Habeeb employment within the foundation upon completion of his course of study and observing the one year mandatory National Youth Service programme.

The Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebayo, in his remarks expressed his happiness and satisfaction with the good works of the foundation, especially as the support initiative was spearheaded by an alumnus of the University. The Vice-Chancellor commended the foundation and its President, and charged him to use his foundation to positively influence Nigerian youths, especially so that they could change their mindset about, and attitude towards the nation.

"Our generation has caused a lot of havoc to this country. However, the youths are the only ones who can make the change we all clamour for. They need to start taking their rightful place as leaders of today not tomorrow. You are already doing your bit, however, I implore you to ignite their spirit to work towards salvaging the nation," the Vice-Chancellor added.

DOMESTICATE KNOWLEDGE OF ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE FOR THE NATION'S DEVELOPMENT - UNIVERSITY DON

...as College of SET holds Annual Lecture in honour of pioneer Provost.

Experts have recommended the domestication of the knowledge of Artificial Intelligence in Nigeria for the nation to meet up with first-world countries.

The experts explained that government, academia, Community and the Private sector (the Quadruple Helix) must come together to rejuvenate Artificial Intelligence knowledge in the nation. They echoed this during the annual lecture of the College of Science, Engineering and Technology of Osun State University, themed "Harnessing Artificial Intelligence in Nation Building: The Role of Private Partnership in Higher Education and Research", which was held in honour of its pioneer Provost, Professor Oladiran Famurewa, at the institution's Auditorium in Osogbo, on Thursday, 21st July, 2022.

The Guest Lecturer, a Professor of Mechatronics, and Vice-Chancellor of Summit University, Offa, Professor Abiodun Musa Aibinu, while delivering his paper titled "Harnessing Artificial Intelligence in Nation Building Using Quadruple Helix", stated that Nigerian universities must not only generate money, but they must also generate knowledge to solve community problems and students must learn to solve community problems.

The Guest Lecturer, who is also an expert in Artificial Intelligence and Robotics explained that Nigeria needs to evolve from user to developer and rejuvenate artificial intelligence by looking into curriculum and implementation.

According to him, Lecturers who are to implement the curriculum should get themselves ready for the job to build problem-solving graduates.

“Some years ago, you needed to go to computer school or training before you know how to operate a computer, but now, you can make use of computers without going to any school. We need to go beyond user to developer, we need to rejuvenate, and look into our curriculum and the way we implement it.” the Guest Lecturer added.

Also speaking through Zoom, the Director, Craobh Technology Consulting, and Lecturer, Department of Computing, Atlantic Technological University, Ireland, Dr. Ruth Lennon, in the course of unraveling her paper titled "Public/Private Partnership: Meeting Industry DevOps and Cloud Skill Requirements in Tertiary Education", urged domain experts (lecturers) to help students in research to get to the level where they could make significant change in the society.

In the same vein, the Head of Information Technology, National Institute of Occupational Health, Johannesburg, South Africa, Dr. Olalekan Samuel Ogunleye, noted that harnessing the power of AI would transform Nigeria into a smart nation. He stressed the importance of developing a data dam in the country and encouraged the adoption of a multi-stakeholder approach.

Earlier in his remarks, the Provost, College of Science, Engineering and Technology, Professor Amos Popoola said the lecture had become an annual ritual with the sole aim of bringing experts to educate the public on how to improve the nation.

In his words, "Nigeria as a country has enormous societal problems and developmental challenges. We have realised that in nation building, we need to deploy artificial intelligence. As a college and community of scholars, we decided to annually bring experts to the college lecture to educate the public on ways to improve our nation."

UNIOSUN DON OUTLINES WAYS TO MITIGATE SUDDEN DEATHS

*...As Faculty of Clinical Sciences
holds faculty lecture*

A Professor of Pediatric Ophthalmology and Dean of the Faculty of Clinical Sciences of Osun State University, Professor Michaeline Isawumi, on Wednesday, 6th July, 2022 identified some ways to avoid sudden deaths among intellectuals and other groups of people in the society. He revealed these while delivering the Faculty of Clinical Sciences lecture titled “Sudden Death among Intellectuals”, an event held at the 750-Lecture Theatre of the University's College of Health Sciences, Isale-Osun, Osogbo.

The Lecturer recommended cessation of cigarette smoking and alcohol intake, regular exercising, healthy eating, regular medical checkups, among others as key steps to take to avoid sudden deaths. He maintained that the lifespan of man is higher in developed countries than third world nations, and citing relevant authorities, he confirmed that Nigeria was one of the countries with very low life expectancy with an average life expectancy of 55.75, which is proportional to her income level.

She established that sudden death is mostly associated with cardiac diseases and highlighted some causes of sudden death to include accidents which could be road traffic or domestic, diseases such as diabetes mellitus and cardiovascular diseases, blood clot medically known as embolus, hypertension which could be primary or secondary, stroke, epilepsy, respiratory disorders, obstetrics and gynaecological problems, stress and occupational hazards, among numerous others.

Immediately after the impactful lecture that thrilled the audience, a plaque was presented to the Faculty Lecturer by the Chairman, Osun State House of Assembly Committee on Health, Honourable Elizabeth Adenike Abioye as a token of appreciation. A goodwill message was thereafter delivered by the Chief Medical Director of UNIOSUN Teaching Hospital, Professor Peter Olaitan.

Earlier in his remarks, the Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, who was represented by the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic, Research, Innovations and Partnerships), Professor Anthony Kola-

Olusanya, commended the Faculty and the College at large for coming up with a fascinating lecture at a this trying time to educate the people on ways to mitigate sudden death. He further advised all staff of the University to avoid unnecessary stress and ensure they all make use of their leaves to rest and enjoy with their loved ones.

“SEE OPPORTUNITIES IN NIGERIA, NOT PROBLEMS” – UNIOSUN VC ADMONISHES FINAL YEAR STUDENTS

...As entrepreneurship centre holds 2-week training for 2021/2022 final year students.

The final year students of the 2021/2022 academic session of Osun State University were on Saturday, 23rd July, 2022 entreated by the Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, to open their eyes to see opportunities in Nigeria rather than problems, as they prepare for life after graduation.

The Vice-Chancellor gave this admonition while making his remarks at the opening ceremony of the two-week entrepreneurship training programme organized by the Centre for Entrepreneurship Studies. The theme of the programme was "Becoming a Self-Sustaining Graduate in the 21st Century", and it was held between Saturday, 23rd July and Saturday, 6th August, 2022 at the Olagunsoye Oyinlola Auditorium.

The Vice-Chancellor asked the students and Nigerians to change their mindset and the way they think if they really want the country to move forward. According to him, "To build a knowledge-based society, you need to start seeing opportunities in Nigeria and not problems. It is not only about prayers, we need to change the way we think if we want a better Nigeria. Therefore, I want to admonish you to start recalibrating your brains and reformatting your hard disk to enable you to be thinking out of the box, and to be able to proffer solutions to pressing societal challenges."

Both the Chief Executive Officers of Osogbo Central Hospital, Dr. Akin Ajayi and of Just Snails Farms, Mr. Femi Oludare Roland, who were present at the occasion charged the participants to henceforth be thinking outside the box and start solving problems in the society.

While presenting his paper titled "Vision and Strategy: Keys to a sustainable entrepreneurship", Dr. Ajayi harped on entrepreneurship and sustainability, highlighting good customer relations and longevity as ways to sustain entrepreneurship. He also echoed the Vice-Chancellor's admonition to the students, imploring them to add value to themselves and build their respective talents.

Earlier in her welcome address, the Director of the Centre for Entrepreneurship Studies, Professor Florence Yusuf, stated that the aim of the programme was to prepare the students, awaken their spirit, sensitize them and equip them with entrepreneurial skills that would make them job creators, not job seekers upon graduation. She also noted that they would be certified in their respective vocations upon completion of training.

“TAKE GOOD CARE OF UNIOSUN STUDENTS LIVING IN YOUR ENVIRONMENT” – VC CHARGES IDI IROKO META COMMUNITY

The Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, called upon the Community leaders of Idi Iroko Meta community in Oke Baale area of Osogbo to care for the University's students living within their terrain, in a bid to protect them from molestation and any form of undue influence. The Vice-Chancellor made this call at a meeting of the University Management with the community leaders at the University's Council Chamber on Wednesday, 27th July, 2022.

The Vice-Chancellor charged the community leaders on the need to be security conscious, and encouraged them to bring to the knowledge of University Management any case of miscreants and other criminal elements that might be disturbing the peace of students living in their environment.

According to him, "We cannot accommodate all of our students on campus, at least not yet. Therefore a chunk of them have to secure accommodation within the University environment across our campuses. But we do not want our students to fall under any negative influence in those areas. Beyond imparting them with knowledge, we act as their parents while they are under us. This is why I am imploring you to ensure our students are safe and well protected within your capacity as a community" the Vice-Chancellor said.

In his response to the Vice-Chancellor's speech, the leader of the team promised to ensure the proper safety of the University's students in their community, noting that the establishment of the University and location of its main campus in the Idiroko Meta area of Oke Baale had transformed the area from the rural area it hitherto was into a modern town.

The Vice-Chancellor further beseeched them to extend his warm gratitude on behalf of Council, Management, Staff and Students of the University to the Ataoja of Osogbo, HRM, Oba Jimoh Olanipekun Oyetunji, Larooye II, for donating the acres of land on which the UNIOSUN Modupe and Folorunso Alakija Teaching Hospital (UNIOSUN-MOFATH) is being built for the University by the Chancellor, Apostle (Dr.) Folorunso Alakija.

The Registrar gave the vote of thanks, and seized the opportunity to remind the community leaders of their commitment to build a police post on the piece of land donated to the community by the University, and told them that the University was still counting on them to deliver on their promise.

UNIOSUN COLLEGE OF SET DIGITIZED MEETING ROOM

...as VC commissions and charges other college provosts to be proactive and increase college IGR

In a bid to join the wave of technological advancement of the 21st century and to connect with other stakeholders of the University, the Management of the College of Science, Engineering and Technology of Osun State University has upgraded the College meeting room to a digitized facility for e-meetings. This laudable project was executed under the leadership of Professor Amos Popoola as Provost, and the project was funded from the College's internally generated revenue.

The Vice-Chancellor, Professor 'Ayo Clement Adebooye, commissioned the digital meeting room on Wednesday, 27th July, 2022. The Vice-Chancellor expressed his personal joy and commended the College first for the innovative and legal ways boosting their internally generated revenue, and then for using such revenue to transform the College. He specially thanked the Provost of the College for his impactful leadership, and enjoined other Provosts and Colleges to emulate the exemplary achievement of the College of Science, Engineering and Technology in that regard.

Addressing the audience at the commissioning, the Vice-Chancellor stated "The college of SET generated money used for this project from sale of lab coats, therefore I am charging other College Provosts to follow suit and devise legitimate means of boosting their IGR to meet their College needs. We have to re-engineer the University to make it a truly world-class citadel of learning. To do this, we have to be proactive in our approach

In his reaction to the Vice-Chancellor's address, the SET College Provost revealed that plans to replicate the digital meeting room in the Faculty of Engineering was in the pipeline, and further assured that a similar project would also be replicated in the Faculty of Environmental Sciences.
