P. SUMMARY OF CONTRIBUTION TO KNOWLEDGE:

My contribution to the book on editorial works has provided readers or users a hands-on information on the duties of editors in the publication process of academic papers in Library and Information Science profession.

Also, my work on challenges that lecturers face in using electronic information databases serves as an eye opener to the university in the areas that need an urgent intervention in the library servicing the College of Agriculture in order to meet up with the global standard in this digital age.

The article on Library service usage, barriers, and strategies to enhance patronage among working students has suggested to libraries and information centers that it is a service they need to embrace in order to boost users' patronage.

The article on digital transformation strategies in selected private university libraries contributes to the body of knowledge that public tertiary institutions of learning need to adopt the digital strategies so as to deliver library products and services to users.

Exploring effective strategies for managing distance learning in a university system discusses and recommends some helpful approaches to manage distance learning in tertiary institutions on learning.

The management of library staff diversity and conflict resolution for effective service delivery in academic libraries explores the strategies and their necessities in order to reduce and manage conflicts among library workers; and achieve effective services delivery.
